YEARBOOK OF EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE

THIS IS EMORY

September 7, 1962, and classes began a year which was to be eventful and vital to Emory and Henry College. The largest freshman class ever to enter the college began winding its way down the academic pathways which were to lead its members to a choice of a vocation, an understanding of the purposes of education, lifelong friendships, appreciation for art and culture, and unlimited vistas for living.

In keeping with the over-all purpose of the institution, students began to learn to think clearly and to evaluate truth properly. From the Catalog this statement: "Emory and Henry College has always endeavored to maintain the liberal arts ideal and at the same time has consistently stressed thorough scholarship . . . Our goal is to establish a broad cultural base and on it to build a program of sound scholarship motivated by Christian idealism." A new phase of an individual's life had begun and self-evaluation was to be foremost in mind; for college would build and guide thought processes, destroy prejudices, inspire creativity, and provide a means for living far exceeding material wealth.

"This is Emory" — a statement which is so meaningful to answer a spark of happiness and new-found friendships or a reply given to slough off yearly complaints. It is also the title of the first vesper program, an event which opens the year with the warmth and spirit that is to dominate the memories of Emory and Henry in years to come.

After orientation, registration, opening of classes, and that traditional repeal of anti-slavery amendments, Ratting, students settle down to the hectic pace of college life. An infinite number of pages to be read, and only one night left in which to do it . . . two term papers due and there's a big dance at V.I. Emory goes on year after year, each year increasing in some ways and losing in others. The scales remain balanced in the final analysis, with the improvements always tending to tip the marker in their favor. Mid-term examinations, Thanksgiving holidays, and the end of an undefeated football season. Final semester exams after a long Christmas holiday . . . the beginning of a new semester, filled with freshmen class elections, spring pledging and a thousand and one other events which will be recorded in one's memory for the years to come. All this, and more, is Emory.

The after-dinner pilgrimages to the post office and cold walks from the dining hall to Stuart Hall . . . Chapel or assembly each week, some good and others not so good. This is Emory. Then suddenly everyone is laughing, crying, screaming, talking, and it's May 26, 1963, and the academic processional has begun. The first year is over for many, one or two more years left for some, and for the seniors, "This is Emory" becomes past tense and another phase of life has begun. The joys and sorrows of building a foundation on which to construct life are over and Emory is your alma mater.

This book can capture but a few of the memories of a year in college. It attempts to provide the best memories. The bull-sessions, long walks to the cemetery, talks under a tree, or quiet moments alone are your own. These you must retain. The yearbook can but remind you.

DEDICATION

So very seldom in life is there afforded an opportunity to experience true greatness. That privilege has for thirteen years been the possession of Emory and Henry's students. Recognition for greatness comes not necessarily from prestige positions. Genius properly turned for the benefit of mankind evolves into greatness. The life and the gift of this man to whom this volume is dedicated has been so wrought up in the cause of the liberal arts education and the development of cultural values that its merits to be classed as great.

For the hours of unselfish devotion spent over musical scores and in rehearsal;

For the cultivation of the right to utilize the mind and to stretch its thought processes to the capacity of the individual;

For the development of a respect and appreciation for religion and its influence on the world and culture, and for the awareness of the need for fine art among people in areas lacking cosmopolitan influence;

For instilling in the minds of students the need for strong-willed and compassionate individuals.

For gifts of the mind and heart, and for material investments in students;

For respecting the opinions of others, yet not always agreeing;

And especially for taking our time with long talks which have served to make the spirit of Emory and Henry and its purpose remain vivid in our minds,

To you, Ludwik Sikorski, this SPHINX of 1963 is dedicated.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

Men and women with a true purpose and dedication in life; men and women with respect for beauty, scholarship, a sense of humor, the individual, for an institution—all living together in an academic community endeavoring to make Emory and Henry achieve that goal for which it exists. This is Emory and Henry and the faculty and administration of a small liberal arts college.

PRESIDENT

Earl G. Hunt, Jr., serves Emory and Henry College as a churchman, citizen, orator, administrator, and academician. There is always time on his crowded calendar of activities to talk with students. He has made himself available to the campus and its needs no matter how minor the matter may seem to be.

Now in his seventh year as President of this institution, Dr. Hunt has worked diligently and in many areas to better the college and to uphold its purpose. He has been responsible for great changes in both the physical plant of the college and its academic growth.

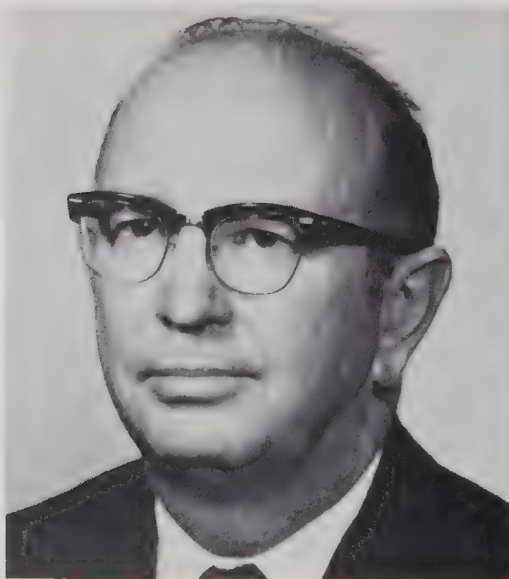

In November of 1962, Dr. Hunt was elected Vice-President of the Church-Related Colleges in the South.

FEATURES

An undertone throughout the Chapel and the voting for Homecoming Queen is in progress . . . The votes are tallied and the Queen is selected. A quick talk with a fortunate young lady and she is told that the honor of being Miss Emory and Henry is hers . . . The White Topper arrives and the campus knows the results of the Who's Who election. Fraternity sweethearts pose for yearbook portraits and then eagerly await the printed product. Three people scurry around campus one night early in the spring semester and suddenly eighteen girls are on the May Court and one is queen . . . This is Emory.

MISS EMORY AND HENRY

Sandra Lee Beane

The selection of a senior woman by the faculty to be Miss Emory and Henry is indication of her outstanding qualities and contribution to the institution and its students. This is the highest and most coveted award a woman student may receive while at the college. The selection is based not only on appearance and charm but on purpose in life and comprehension of the goals for usefulness which this institution has endeavored to instill in its students. Miss Emory and Henry is representative of the finest the college can offer.

Miss Sandra Lee Beane is from Montross, Virginia, and has rendered many outstanding services to the school. Her major is business education.

Spiritually, morally, socially and academically, Sandy has been a credit to the college and a fine representative of the student body. She has been Secretary of the Christian Student Movement, the Women's Student Government Association, the Senior class and her sorority, Alpha Beta Chi. She was sweetheart of the Dom-I-Necher fraternity and is Blue Key Darling this year. She has been active in all phases of campus life and the honor of being Miss Emory and Henry is rightly deserved.

Emory and Henry students are fortunate to have the opportunity of hearing the best ministers and lyceum events to be found in the country. Many times students tend to forget the magnitude of an individual speaker and judge him on his immediate presentation. This judgement is soon forgotten and it is with pride that we look back at the quality of men and women brought to our campus to perform or speak each year.

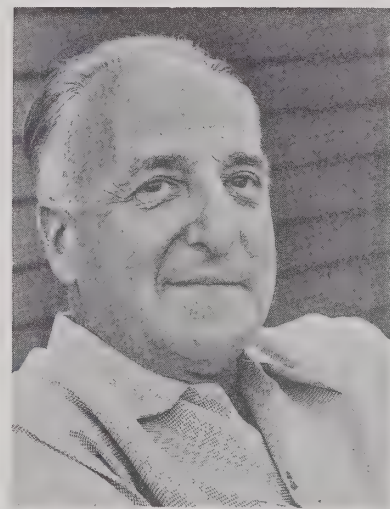

On Tuesday or Thursday of each week students pack the Chapel or the gymnasium to hear the speaker. Chapel is part of the Emory tradition and while it has its faults, it provides for an element of one's education not available in all colleges.

In addition to speakers presented on these two pages, we had a piano concert by Theodore Ullman, concert pianist, and were given the opportunity to meet the Bishop of Norway. The Blue and Cardinal Key assembly always adds excitement to the Assembly calendar and Awards Assembly is eagerly anticipated.

BLUE KEY

Blue Key National Honor Fraternity provides recognition to those men who have rendered to Emory and Henry College service through leadership in student affairs.

The high ideals of the organization are those of its members. It recognizes leadership and academic prowess.

The tapping ceremonies are held each semester with eligibility restricted to Junior and Senior men who have met the academic and service requirements. Membership is selective and restricted.

Blue Key co-sponsors the annual Homecoming Festivities. This project is its biggest undertaking. It is the duty of each member to focus his abilities in the area of campus work in which he is involved.

Honorary membership may be extended to a faculty member and several of the Emory and Henry faculty are members of Blue Key.

The Emory and Henry College Chapter was the second chapter established in the country.

Officers this year are: Charlie Mason, President, Ron Patterson, Vice-President, Bruce High, Corresponding Secretary, James Warden, Treasurer, and Bill Troy, Alumni Secretary.

CARDINAL KEY

Recognition of outstanding achievements both in academics and leadership is given to women students through the Cardinal Key National Honor Sorority. Each young lady attaining membership has met the rigid requirements and has shown promise of continued service.

In joint sponsorship with the Blue Key, Cardinal Key directs the annual Homecoming activities. Cardinal Key has begun financing the repairing of the old portraits which line the halls of the Wiley Hall Administration Building.

Tapping ceremonies are held each semester in conjunction with the Blue Key.

Membership in Cardinal Key is indicative of outstanding talents and future service not only to the college but to the profession or home a young woman will enter.

Officers this year are: Lee Powell, President, Miriam Macfarlan, Vice-President, Brenda Graves, Secretary, Joyce Robinson, Treasurer, and Carole Wharton, Historian.

Graduation

"A day that will live in infamy." The thoughts of graduating seniors ramble back across three or four years to the first day they joined the student body of Emory and Henry College. Today is graduation day: The day on which a diploma is awarded and as a college graduate one joins the ranks of the educated. The realization that life now lies before one and not behind is startling. Suddenly, the words that everyone has been saying rush into each person's thoughts and he realizes that truly the days one spends in college are the best ever. Bill Troy was the senior orator.

There is much to be hoped for: many will be married right away, others later. Some will go to graduate school. The paths of most of the class will not cross again. Each person will establish new friendships and their families will give them new responsibilities, but forever the memories of the days at Emory and Henry will remain alive. The close friendships established will not be forgotten, but circumstances will prevent the every-day association which has been ours for these years.

Naive, socially aware of what the other fellow was thinking, and anxious, we came to Emory and Henry. We came unaware of the task of education. We came seeking facts and information, for this was the substance of education. We leave knowing that education is far more than fact or information. The thought patterns that have guided men through the ages are ours. The greatest knowledge we have attained is the fact that we can never know everything and that our knowledge is restricted. Life is a growing process and only in old age do we ever realize what we should have done, but didn't.

The College has given of its best to us and now the burden of responsibility is upon our shoulders. The choice for life is ours and the test of our Alma Mater will be the job we do in life. Fame is not the measure of a man's gift to his fellows. The contributions made by Emory and Henry graduates do not lie always in the limelight of the nation, but are rather to be found in the church, the home, the schools and the community. A purpose in life far surpassing the desire for material well-being has been our lesson at Emory and Henry. Association with a faculty of dedicated men and women who have given up position for a life of meaning and satisfaction has been our ever-present example at Emory and Henry. Graduation 1963 can be but the first of life's many challenges for our class, for, like this day our class will "live in infamy."

DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Memorial Chapel

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman was born in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University. He continued his studies at Columbia University from which he received both his M.A. degree and his Ph.D. degree.

While a student at Columbia, Dr. Sockman associated himself actively with the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church (now Christ Church, Methodist) as a layman, and there received the inspiration that turned him towards the ministry. In 1916, Dr. Sockman joined the Madison Avenue staff as an Associate Minister. In 1917 he came into the full pastorate of the church where he has the unique record of having served over forty years in his parish.

Since 1928 his voice has ministered to the people throughout this country and Canada through the "National Radio Pulpit." Dr. Sockman is president of the Council on Religious and International Affairs, formerly the Church Peace Union, a Carnegie Foundation. In 1941 he delivered the famed Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale and for two years (1947-48) was visiting professor of Homiletics at Yale Divinity School. For the next twelve years he was Associate Professor of Practical Theology at Union Theological Seminary. He is a trustee of New York University, Ohio Wesleyan, Syracuse University and Drew University. On the death of President James Rowland Angell of Yale, Dr. Sockman was appointed Director of the Hall of Fame for Great Americans. Dr. Sockman is also Senior Chaplain of New York University. He has received honorary degrees from 21 universities, including such well-known institutions as Columbia, Duke, Northwestern, New York University and Oberlin.

Twenty years ago Dr. Sockman was named by Christian Century as one of the six foremost clergymen of all denominations in this country. Time Magazine in 1961 rated him still higher. He was a delegate to the first Assembly of the World Council of Churches and served on its Central Committee from 1948 to 1954. At Duke University Commencement in 1954, Dr. Sockman was hailed as "Dean of the American Protestant pulpit." He has twice declined the office of Bishop.

Dr. Charles C. Parlin is the senior member of the New York law firm of Shearman & Sterling. This firm is probably the largest law firm in the world, specializing in banking, corporate finance, taxation and international law.

A native of Wausau, Wisconsin, he received his B.S. degree in economics from the University of Pennsylvania in 1919 and his LL.B. degree from Harvard Law School in 1922. He holds honorary degrees from five colleges and universities, among them American University and Drew University.

Among his many business affiliations, he is President and Director of the U. S. & Foreign Securities Corporation. He is a director of the Celanese Corporation of America; Citizens National Bank of Englewood, New Jersey; Compania Ontario, S. A.; First National City Bank of New York; Guerlain, Inc.; Pallas Corporation; Potash Import & Chemical Corporation, and Schlumberger, Ltd.

He is a trustee of Union Theological Seminary, Drew University, Bethune-Cookman College, and American University. He received the B'nai B'rith award for the outstanding citizen of Englewood, his present residence. He is a member of the Commission on Law and Social Action of the American Jewish Congress.

He is a member of the First Methodist Church of Englewood, New Jersey, and has six times served as a delegate to the General Conference. He was elected in 1961 to serve as Chairman of Business & Finance of the National Council of Churches. In 1961 Dr. Parlin was elected to serve on the Presidium of the World Council of Churches. Look and Together Magazines have recently published articles about Dr. Parlin.

GREEKS

First of school . . . Greeting freshmen . . . "He's sharp!" . . . "Watch him, or he'll get dirty rushed to death." Rush parties . . . bids and silent period . . . pledging. New members and friends become part of a group uniting men or women of common intent and purpose. Each social group giving more than routine activities. Giving lasting friendships, with mutual appreciations and constructive criticisms. Meaningful bull-sessions or trips to the "Road." The thrill of asking a date to that first function and then the night . . . This is Emory.

ALPHA BETA CHI

Established thirty-four years ago, Alpha Beta Chi Sorority continues to be an active part of the Emory and Henry Campus. This year has brought added recognition to the Sorority through the achievements and activities of our members . . . Vicki, "B.B.," Joyce Marie, "Beanes," Wharton, and "Gravey Lou" were tapped for Cardinal Key. Fraternity sweethearts . . . Bonnie, Sigma Iota; Vicki, Phi Gamma Phi; "B.B.," Theta Chi Epsilon; Lee, Beta Lambda Zeta; and Sandy, Blue Key Darling.

Well represented in Who's Who . . . Joyce Marie, Sandy, Carol Wharton, and Joyce Bellamy.

"The Roarin' 20's" carried off the first-place trophy in "Greeks Present" for the second consecutive year. An active participation in sports brought the volleyball championship and the intramural championship for the third year.

A memorable year . . . fall rush party at Vicki's with songs and laughter; Anne, Shelia, Nancy, and Carolyn as pledges with our formal initiation at Howard Johnson's.

A year of working together . . . planning and serving the Alumni Luncheon at Homecoming and the Thanksgiving dinner for the Student Body; the fall dinner dance, "Snow Time," highlighted by two bright diamonds; the Christmas party at Niz's with cold weather and a warm fire, and the continued striving toward a closer brotherhood and sisterhood with Sigma Iota Fraternity.

These memories fill the past, and many hopes and plans fill the future.

Popcorn stringing and making bells to decorate for "A Christmas Carol" at the Virginia House. A holiday party given for us by Mrs. Bingham and Mrs. Culberson . . . Giving shoes to underprivileged children, both occasions highlighting the Christmas season for our sorority.

Cathy was installed as our new president in the spring and plans for the "Greeks Present" and intramurals kept us busy. "Potpourri," our song book, came out in the spring to warm up rusty ukes. More plans for rush, pledging, a party given by pledges with the Theta Chi's, formal initiation in the chapel, our spring function and plans for next year. Another year vanished in time but not escaped from our memories. Struggle and reward, work and fulfillment of our purposes. Beauty, love and courage our guideposts.

Dinner with our sponsors, the Masons and the Jack Browns; dinner with our brothers—the Gams . . . both rewarding and entertaining. Karen elected to Who's Who and tapped for Cardinal Key. Three fall pledges . . . Gail, Janice and Barbara. Working together for "Winter Haven." Sharing with each other at our Christmas party and with others for our project. Vacation . . . Exams . . . A new semester. In February the "Greeks Present." Later in the spring, rushing and pledging. Function time again and those awful pledge speeches. Another year coming to a close, and then saying goodbye to our seniors. Tears and promises to write . . . to remember.

Beauty, love and courage . . . the hidden meaning of K P A . . . bringing to each of us the higher ideals of life. Ideals to last forever in an undying sisterhood.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

GOLDIE ROSS
President

The Pan-Hellenic Council co-ordinates the rushing and pledging of the four social sororities. Each sorority is represented on the council by its president, vice-president and Pan-Hellenic representative. The four council offices are filled by one member from each sorority delegation.

Among the major activities of the Pan-Hellenic Council are the teas which are given for women students who have signed up for rushing. This year the Pan-Hell in conjunction with the Inter-Fraternity Council sponsored the building of a picnic pavillion for parties and cook-outs.

The Pan-Hellenic Council is sponsored by the Dean of Women. It is through the sponsor that bids are mailed and received. The Council conducts the bidding by the preferential system.

Membership on the Pan-Hellenic Council can vary each semester. Fall members were: Goldie Ross, President, Page Brickey, Sue Gilbert, Ann Edmondson, Dottie Pack, Becky Hurst, Vicki Morison, Carol Zane Thompson, Pam McKinney, Virginia Arington, Trina Lane, and Carolyn Foard.

The Inter-Fraternity Council directs the joint activities of the six campus-wide social fraternities. Each fraternity is represented on the council by its president and vice-president. The council is sponsored by the Dean of Men, who handles the bidding process. The sponsor announces at the end of the quiet period the names of the students who accepted and gives to the president of the fraternity the acceptance cards.

Intramurals, homecoming campaign, sweetheart dance and pledging are the areas of vital concern for the Inter-Fraternity Council. The body has the right to pass regulations by which all members must abide. It is responsible for disciplinary action taken against member fraternities who violate established regulations regarding fraternities.

In conjunction with the Pan-Hellenic Council the IFC helped to establish a picnic pavillion for campus-wide use. The IFC co-sponsored with the Student Government the Four Preps' appearance on the campus this fall.

Like the Pan-Hellenic Council, membership on the IFC can change each semester. Fall semester representatives were: Dick Kemper, President, Dave Henry, Vice-President, Bruce High, Secretary-Treasurer, Ken Brewster, Bob Brown, Don Herbert, Larry Nave, Eddie Wolcott, Jim Summitt, James Warden, Charlie Nagle, and Tommy Haskins.

BETA LAMBDA ZETA

Tracing their history to the year 1927, the brothers of Beta Lambda Zeta continue in a tradition of activeness and brotherhood. The Lambs began their projects this year by providing desk blotters for each student on campus.

Lee Powell from Arlington, Virginia, was sweetheart for this year. Mason, Warden, Summitt, and Brown in the Blue Key. Mason serving as senior class President and elected to Who's Who. Summitt as SPHINX Business Manager; Micou as director of the Collegians.

A highlight of the year was the awarding of the Garnand Scholarship to a deserving male student. Pledge party at Andy's and the fall dinner-dance at the Holiday Inn.

Studying and "long day's journey into night" for a Rainbow burger or a Dead-eye burger, bull-sessions or double-dating. All phases of campus activities find Beta Lambs actively participating.

A fraternity proud of its alumni and its rich tradition. A fraternity preserving the tradition of a great brotherhood.

DOM-I-NECHER

Since 1920 an Emory and Henry tradition, Dom-I-Necher is the oldest fraternity on the campus and was named for St. Dominic. Black and red signify this brotherhood and the Dominiquer rooster is our emblem.

A fraternity is not dependent upon size. The existing spirit is a product of the quality of its members and Dom-I-Necher is proud of its close brotherhood.

Betty Bowie of Bristol, Tennessee, served as Sweetheart for 1962-63. An exciting homecoming campaign highlighted by a torchlight parade was but symbolic of Dom-I-Necher spirit.

The fall semester saw the brotherhood sponsoring a nationally known acrobatic entertainer. In intramurals the DIN was runner-up for the football championship.

Blue Key tapped Larry Nave in the fall semester. Wolcott served on the President of the Student Body's cabinet as Day Student Director.

Diversified interests and individuals, all managing to find time to live a little and be a close brotherhood.

PHI GAMMA PHI

In 1928 the brotherhood of Phi Gamma Phi was established. Since that time the familiar cry, "I live and die, Phi Gamma Phi!" has been heard in classrooms during pledging.

A brotherhood long proud of its athletes, the Phi Gams have excelled in all areas of intercollegiate and intramural sports. Two Gams, Jimmy Hughes and Jack Thomas, were co-captains of the varsity football squad. Bill Bryant was elected to the third team LITTLE ALL-AMERICAN Associated Press team. Magill, Thomas, Burton received recognition for their outstanding work on the varsity squad.

The sweetheart of this year was Vicki Morison, a senior from Bristol, Tennessee. The Gams had a hayride for the student body and followed this up with a rock 'n' roll dance, all part of their homecoming campaign.

Sid Smith, a member of Blue Key and Sigma Mu, was publicity co-ordinator for the Athletic Department.

Pledging, functions, parties, card games at Stuart Hall, and great times are all part of the proud tradition of Phi Gamma Phi.

SIGMA IOTA

Established in 1926 with thirteen charter members, Sigma Iota has created a tradition worthy of Emory and Henry. The Sigs kept swinging in tradition with a torch light parade for Bonnie Fallesen, their sweetheart and homecoming candidate.

President Dick Kemper was elected Inter-Fraternity council President for the year. The Sigs were intramural football champions. Dr. and Mrs. Scheibe sponsored the Sigs this year. Savinsky was president of the junior class, Jarrett a cheerleader.

Last year's "Greeks Present" trophy for the Most Original performance went to the fraternity and "Spagettio" was performed all over southwest Virginia.

Brothers active in all areas of campus activities, a proud heritage and a bright future. Working with their sisters, the ABX, the Sigs keep alive a proud tradition between the two groups.

THETA CHI EPSILON

A growing tradition of leadership and brotherhood, Theta Chi Epsilon has taken great strides since its creation in the spring of 1960. The Theta Chi's have held the fraternity scholarship award for two consecutive years.

This year, as in the past, Theta Chi's have been active in all phases of campus life. Bill Troy and Charlie Hardin as President and Vice-President of the Student Body respectively. Dan Adams and Ken Brewster as Student Judiciary heads. Cush C.S.M. President, Patterson and Keyser as editors of the White Topper and High as Sphinx editor.

Brewster, Cushman, Engleman, Adams, Hardin, High, Patterson, and Troy in the Blue Key. Cush, Troy, Adams, Hardin, and High in the Who's Who. Joyce Bellamy of Wise, Virginia, was the sweetheart this year.

Fall pledging added eight new brothers to the growing brotherhood. The fall dinner-dance, "It's In the Bag," at the Holiday Inn. A variety of meetings with slides of Hardin and Brewster's World's Fair trip to Dr. Hunt's autograph collection and faculty discussions, or just enjoying a snack "B.B." made for us.

Bull sessions, trips to the "Road" and new versions of folk-songs, all growing and developing into a proud brotherhood based on sound reasons for existing and firm beliefs in the purpose of education and role of the church-related college.

ATHLETICS

Excitement, tension, rainy weather—final score 38-33 and Emory defeated the Washington & Lee "Generals." A damp, drizzly Saturday night, November 17, and an undefeated football team is welcomed back home at the season's end. Athletics are a proud part of Emory and Henry's tradition. A lonely playing field or one filled with crowds of alumni and students and, "This is Emory!"

WASPS 1962

It was a tremendous year on the gridiron for the Emory and Henry Wasps as they battled their way to the first undefeated season since 1951. Only a 7-7 tie with Carson-Newman in the second game of the season marred an otherwise spotless record.

If ever there was a team that was built on desire—a team that didn't know how to quit—this year's squad was it. The faith they had in themselves and in each other is exemplified by the fact that in five out of eight games the Wasps had to come from behind. This ability to come from behind, more than anything else, is a mark of a great team.

No comeback was ever greater than the one against Washington and Lee at Homecoming on October 6. This game was probably the turning point of the season and it proved to the boys what they could do as a team. As Coach Casto Ramsey said, "Our whole team came of age today. We played like one."

Rain and more rain. That was the picture as ten bus-loads of Emoryites travelled to Boone to see their Wasps kick off another season by defeating heavily favored Appalachian State 6-3.

After playing a bruising defensive game the first half, the Wasps fumbled to set up Appy State's field goal with only seconds left in the half. After intermission the Mountaineers fumbled on their own 13, and a third down pass from Earl Hawkins to Bobby Magill put the Wasps out in front—for good.

After a week's rest the Wasps entertained the Carson-Newman Eagles in Bristol and played to a 7-7 deadlock in what turned out to be another defensive battle.

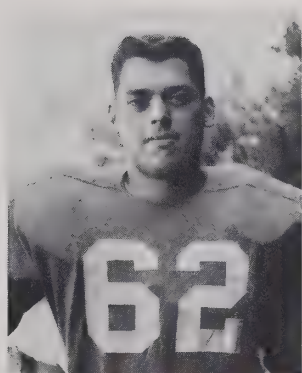

Emory took the opening kickoff and marched 70 yards for C. A. Burton's touchdown and Bobby Magill's extra point. It looked like victory in the making, until—on the first play from scrimmage the Eagles' Jimmy Ray Carter broke through the Wasp secondary and raced 70 yards for the touchdown and an extra point which tied the score.

The highly rated Washington and Lee Generals from Lexington breezed into Emory on Homecoming day with a 21-game unbeaten streak and a string of press clippings proclaiming them as the small-college powerhouse of the state. They had just about everyone convinced mid-way the third period as they ran up a seemingly insurmountable 33 to 14 bulge. Everyone, that is, except the Wasps. Bending their backs to the task, the Blue and Gold came roaring back with a vengeance. Playing like a team possessed, they ran roughshod over the shocked Generals and, moments before the final gun, pushed across the winning touchdown to post a spine-tingling 38 to 33 victory. The final twenty-three minutes saw the Wasps put to a task and come out on top. They took the kick-off following W&L's third tally of the second half and drove to the four-yard line. There, Hawkins came charging through again for the score and threw to Bill Munsey for the PAT. This made the score 33-22, W&L.

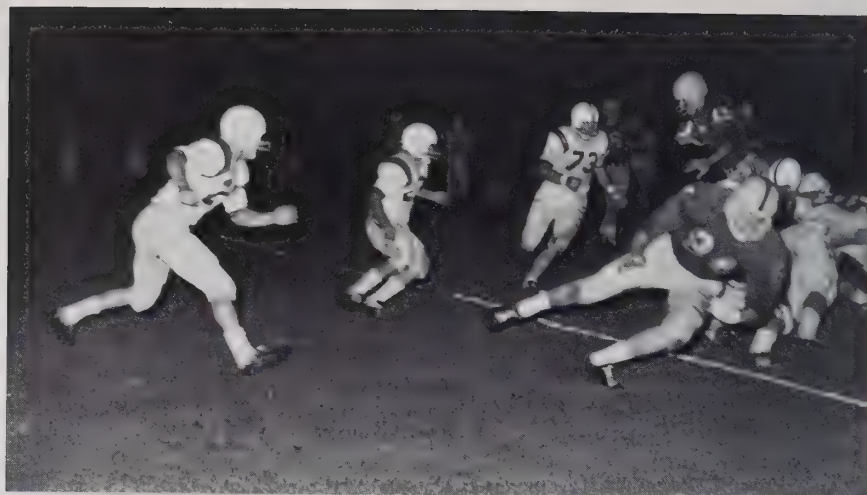

Curt Campbell intercepted a pass on the General 28, and two plays later Hawkins went over right tackle 26 yards for the score. Bobby Magill threw to Lin Parrish for the score and W&L's lead was cut to 33-30.

After W&L was stopped on the Wasp 27, Emory marched to the winning score with Hawkins going over on fourth and inches. He threw to Hite for the PAT and the clincher to a sweet 38-33 victory.

Maybe you have to expect a let-down, but it wasn't the same Emory and Henry team on the field against Maryville as the one that out-hustled and out-played Washington & Lee a week earlier. The fact is, our Wasps were out-played for three quarters of the ball game.

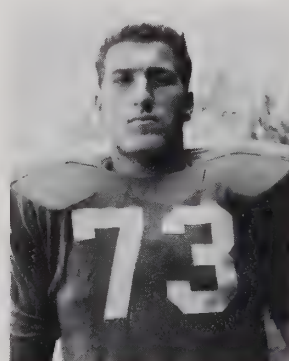

With the exception of the opening touchdown drive, the Wasps didn't begin to play the ball they were capable of playing until the fourth quarter. Then it was all Emory. C. A. Burton started the team off with his game-winning 80-yard touchdown run, smashing through the left side of the Scottie line. He was hit by two tacklers at the 25 but just lowered his head and ran right over them. Earl Hawkins gave a nice second effort to get the two-point conversion, making the score 14-7—Emory.

BASKETBALL-1962-63

The basketball squad of Emory and Henry College for the season of 1962-63 began with a loss to Lees-McRae in overtime, 49-45. This was to be typical of the hardships endured by the Wasps in the coming campaign.

The squad was composed of: Seniors: Larry Nave, Gene "Spider" Hurst, Jack Hale, Bob "Footsie" Brown; Sophomores: Bob Hughes, Gerald Burke, Charles Teefey and Horace Barker; and Freshmen: Jimmy Higgins, Greg Harper, Jack Lynch, Vince Brown and Jimmy Evans. Larry Nave and Gerald Burke were co-captains of the 1962-63 squad.

Following the initial loss to Lees-McRae, the Wasps proceeded to win the next two out of three games, defeating Milligan and Tusculum, both on the Wasps' home floor. The Wasps showed signs of great potential with the employment of a two-platoon system which was largely made successful by the second unit, "The Reindeer."

On December 14, the Wasps lost a hard-fought overtime game to Maryville, 87-85, on the Scotties' home floor. The following night the rival was powerful Carson-Newman. After playing a respectable first half, the Wasps bowed decisively to the Baptists from Jefferson City.

This seemed to spell the beginning of trouble for the squad after semester break. First, Bob Brown and Jimmy Evans were lost from the team. Their loss was cushioned by the addition of Charles Teefey, a fine shooting guard from Richmond, Virginia. However, the Wasps lacked the ability to put two good halves of basketball together and could not break the spell. Nine straight defeats followed that eventful Carson-Newman game.

Finally, on February 12, the Wasps invaded Milligan College at Johnson City and won. Aided greatly by the 28-point boost of Bob Hughes and the scoring and rebounding of Gerald Burke and "Spider" Hurst, the Wasps broke the streak by taking an 88-82 decision. It looked like the squad might shake the doldrums and finish the season on a bright note, but disappointingly the Wasps suffered a rough defeat at the hands of King College. However, the team showed determination by winning the next home game with Maryville. This proved to be the last game of the season after the contest with Mars-Hill was cancelled. The squad finished the season with four wins and thirteen defeats.

Sophomore co-captain Gerald Burke was the scoring leader for the season, with Bob Hughes and "Spider" Hurst also averaging in the double figures. "Spider" led by a definite margin in the rebounding department. Lettermen for the season were Larry Nave, Gene Hurst, Jack Hale, Gerald Burke, Bob Hughes, Greg Harper and Jimmy Higgins. With the return of Burke and Hughes and the fine promise shown by Freshmen Greg Harper, Jimmy Higgins and Jack Lynch, there are high hopes in the Wasps' hive for a good season in 1963-64.

Coach Carl Bolt in his second season with the Emory baseball team, gathered in five wins during what was considered a rebuilding year for the Wasps.

The overall record was 5-12, while the Smokey Mountain Athletic Conference record was 4-6. The Wasps were led by center fielder-pitcher George Bowman, who won the conference batting crown with a .591 average. Jim Hughes and Carlos Allison were behind him with .385 and .363 batting averages respectively. The Wasps scored an average of 6.9 runs per game to their opponent's 8.3 runs per game. This alone indicates that the Blue and Gold were by no means trounced every time they set foot on the diamond. The biggest contributing factor in the way the season ended was in the shortage of pitchers.

The 1962 edition of Wasp baseball ended with a hopeful glance toward another campaign. The promising returners made the outlook for 1963 a bright one. They were Jimmy Hughes, Carlos Allison, Curt Campbell, Alvin Crowder, Johnny Moore, Gary Arnold, and Bill Bryant. With a little help from the new students, the first winning season in several years was expected.

Campbell hurls Wasps to another victory

Hughes belts a double

Wanting to forget their 4-8 record during the 1962 campaign, the racket squad looked forward to 1963 hoping to improve their record. The only two of Coach Paul Delaplain's lettermen returning were Ronnie Via and Bill Jones. Via had a superior 34-5 individual record over three years of play. With a little help from the freshmen, the Wasps should come back up to the calibre they were when they lost only two of 27 matches the two previous years.

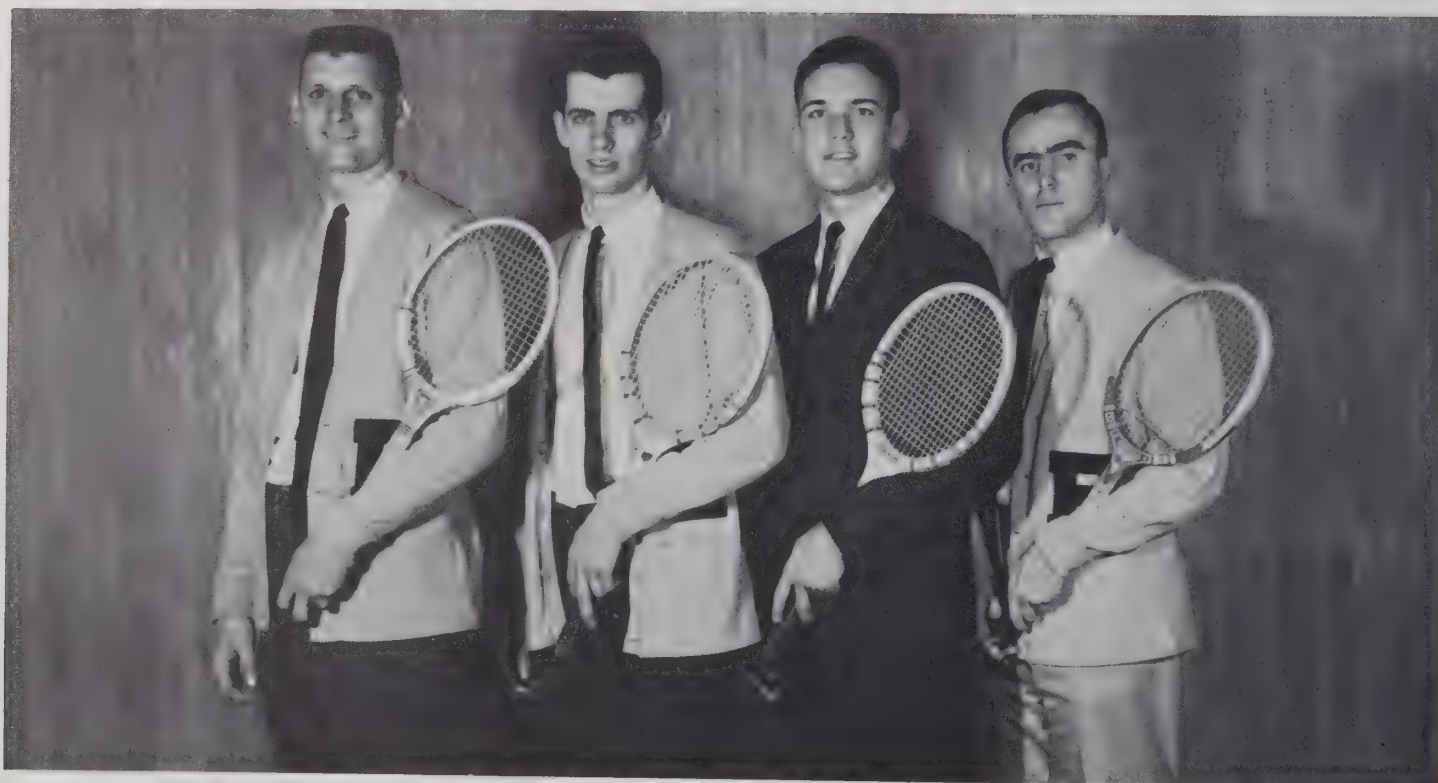

The Wasps scored wins over King, East Tennessee State, and Concord (2). They anxiously started practicing as soon as the last snow melted off the courts and stayed in high spirits all during the season. Traveling with the baseball team on several occasions, one of the high spots for the racketeers was the two day trip to Tennessee Wesleyan and Carson-Newman.

WASPS RAMBLE

DR. HUNTER WOLFE

Dr. Hunter Wolfe is pictured to the left of this column. His devoted service to the Emory and Henry football team merits for him the deepest appreciation of not only the team and coaches, but the entire student body. Dr. Wolfe graduated from Emory and Henry in 1922 and went to The Medical College of Virginia. For years he has followed the Wasps on all their varsity games, always present and ready for any emergency. He faithfully and untiringly gives of himself and his free time to help Emory and Henry's athletic program in any way that he can. You can count on Dr. Wolfe to be right on the bench with the team no matter how far from home they travel. His hunting cap and jacket are football trademarks wherever the Wasps play.

I-HEY

From behind the scenes interested alumni and friends provide much of the support for the Emory football team. Some contributions are small, others are large, but combined they provide for financing the football teams and players for which Emory is noted. I-HEY means "I help each year," and this is exactly what these men do when called upon. The unsung gifts that are given to provide money for football scholarships help to make the players that publicize the college. The only tangible evidence of their contribution to I-HEY is a membership card and weekly football letter with interesting facts about the team. Each member of I-HEY experiences a certain pride and thrill whenever a player whom he has unknowingly helped scores and joyous student body sings the praises of an undefeated football season. There is a satisfaction in giving towards a job well done and this satisfaction is an I-HEY member's. Strong I-HEY support is appreciated but never is there an opportunity for the student body to say thank-you to the scores of members. The SPHINX takes this opportunity to express the gratitude of the team and the student body to I-HEY and Mr. C. C. Poindexter for his work with the organization.

HOMECOMING '62

Emory ended Washington and Lee's winning streak by a rousing score of 38-33 and took the Homecoming honors off the field. The crowd for the day was the largest ever for an Emory game at home and every play proved to add excitement to the tales which would grow and be retold for years about this game. The first touchdown was by Emory's Earl Hawkins and he returned the kickoff. From then on the game was a hard battle. Halftime festivities provided relief and Miss Carolyn Foard was crowned Homecoming Queen. The last few seconds of the game were too much for the crowd and the countdown from 34 seconds to the end was an eternity. The excitement of the day was saddened by the death of Dean V. S. Armbrister at the end of the game. A victorious team joined with their fellow students in the sorrow of the day, but the memory of the greatest game ever played on Fullerton Field would live on forever.

CHARLIE FOSTER DAY

As an expression of sincere gratitude for forty-five years of service to Emory and Henry College, members of all former athletic teams and other interested students honored Charlie Foster on November 10, 1962, during the halftime festivities of the Concord game. Charlie and his wife were presented with color pictures of Charlie on the job at the gym, a certificate of appreciation and over six hundred dollars in cash and bonds. The untiring effort of Charlie Foster has served the athletic teams of this college for years. One message received by Charlie on this day said that his name would live on with the names of all those faithfully devoted to the service of Emory and Henry College and her students.

ACTIVITIES

"Not room for one more and this notice has got to be put where everyone will see it." "Oh, no! I've got five meetings to-night and two tests tomorrow." Clubs, clubs, and clubs. Pros and cons for joining reviewed every year. Controversial articles in the White Topper, a good story in the Prism by "Why I didn't believe he had it in him," revived rivalry between the Calliopeans and Hermesians. FOUR PREPS and the long, hard legislature meeting. A place for every student to grow in responsibility and understanding of people. An activity in which to give and develop talents. This is Emory.

Bill Troy
President of the Student Body

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student government at Emory and Henry College is an integral part of the campus activities, serving both student body and college administration in a wide scope of activities.

President, Vice-President, and Secretary-Treasurer are elected each year in heated political campaigns. As chief executive the President has the duty of appointing the Chief Justice and Prosecuting Attorney of the Student Judiciary, cabinet officials, co-editors of the Student Handbook, Rat Court members, and various temporary committee chairmen.

The student government officials control the Student body funds with legislature approval.

It has brought within the reach of Emory and Henry students such nationally celebrated groups as the Brothers Four, the Highwaymen; and this year, in Emory's own Martin-Brock gymnasium, The Four Preps.

LEGISLATURE

The legislature, composed of elected students, four from each class, represents student opinion and acts accordingly.

It initiates and decides upon issues and projects affecting the student body; regulates distribution of student activity fees; and approves presidential appointments.

In addition to the elected legislators, class presidents of the three underclasses and vice-president of the senior class serve as legislators.

Any member of this body may introduce legislation. The legislature is presided over by the Vice-President of the Student Body. He has no vote. The Clerk of the House is the Secretary-Treasurer of the Student Body.

Legislative membership provides the recognition necessary for political parties on the campus.

JUDICIARY

Headed by the Chief Justice and Prosecuting Attorney, the Judiciary provides an effective means for dealing with all male students' disciplinary problems excepting morals cases.

The Judiciary is composed of justices elected from each hall in the men's dormitories. These justices provide residence halls with monitors; and they act as a jury should a trial be held.

The Judiciary has a large responsibility in the effectiveness of the student government and has become a point of respect for Emory and Henry's student government.

Appointed by the President of the student body, the Cabinet chairmen head areas which are vital to the functioning of the student government. The Cabinet areas are School Spirit, Finance, Social Activities, Student Government Treasury, Cafeteria, Buildings and Grounds, Day Student Affairs, Publicity, and Lost and Found. Their duties range from chartering buses for away football games and sponsoring pep rallies to posting the breakfast menu and providing records and record player for the bi-weekly dances in Carriger and Hillman Halls. One Cabinet committee studies the needs and requests of organizations requiring activity fee funds and makes the necessary allocation recommendations to the legislature. Another makes arrangements for contracting the Four Preps for a November performance on campus.

The Cabinet committees serve as interest areas for many members of the student body.

The Rat Court's goal is to orient the freshmen as quickly as possible to the customs and traditions of the college. The program is highlighted by the Rat Dance and the crowning of "Mr. and Miss Rat."

Ratting is a time-honored tradition on the Emory and Henry campus and its major unofficial task is to perpetuate the immortal soul of Jigalo Abernoski.

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The WSGA Council, the governing body of the women students, is responsible for drawing up and administering their social rules. This year it has sought to institute and co-ordinate the rules and activities for an additional dormitory:

and acted in cooperation with the Student Judiciary in disciplinary matters involving men and women students.

The WSGA has almost complete disciplinary authority over women students.

Worship

The core of the religious life on the Emory and Henry campus is the C.S.M. Its seven commissions work together in co-ordinating the religious activities, such as vesper programs, deputation teams, and Religion-in-Life Week. Seminars on Race Relations, Marriage and the Family and Alcohol are but a few of the other areas of interest that are CSM-sponsored.

In the fall of 1962 Dr. Harold A. Bosley, from Christ Church Methodist of New York City, led Religion-in-Life Week on the campus.

One of the major duties of the CSM is planning and directing the Freshman Orientation program each year.

While CSM membership is automatic when a student enrolls in the college, participation is an individual matter. Many students find CSM work a vital part of their college experience.

CHOIRS

The Freshman choir is restricted to members of the freshman class. It performs at Chapel services and sings on alternating Sundays at the morning worship service.

The Chapel choir is composed of upperclassmen, and sings at Chapel services and alternates with the Freshman choir on Sunday mornings.

Selected through competitive audition, the Concert choir, composed of upperclassmen, officially represents the college in off-campus concerts. This year's annual tour led them to Northern Virginia and Middle Tennessee. The choir has been invited to sing at the General Conference of the Methodist Church in Pittsburgh in 1964 and at Christ Church Methodist in New York City during the World's Fair in 1964.

The Oratorio choir is composed of the other three choirs and any other students, faculty members, or community residents who wish to join. This choir presents two major choral works annually.

Sigma Mu is an honorary academic scholarship society composed of the highest-ranking fifteenth of the junior class and the highest-ranking tenth of the senior class. This year the society promoted the campus-wide reading and studying of a thought-provoking book. Requirements for membership are based on those of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity. The Sigma Mu Freshman award is given annually at spring commencement to the freshman student achieving number-one academic standing in that class.

COLLEGIANS

An all-male chorus under student direction, the Collegians give concerts and serenades on campus and make several concert tours in the local area. The members are chosen by audition and enjoy the experience of close fellowship through their musical endeavors.

The Collegians tour between semesters to such places as Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn, and the Washington, D.C. area. Weekend concerts often take them to local churches or area colleges.

Financing the tours is the group's own responsibility. Concerts are given for the costs of expenses.

The Collegians sing annually in a campus concert, the Christmas program with the Highlands Chamber Orchestra, and the Easter program.

SPHINX

Although the Sphinx has never attempted to follow the most proper technical methods, this publication has always endeavored to convey to the Emory and Henry student body the best of the year's events and provide a book of which they can always be proud. It is not just another college publication, but rather, it is one of the few reminders of college which will remain with them forever.

The many harried hours of photography, layout, and copy writing all pay off at the Awards Assembly when the Sphinx is dedicated to a deserving person, Miss Emory and Henry is announced, and the student body is presented with their yearbooks.

WHITE TOPPER

The weekly newspaper of the college has grown from four pages to eight pages this year. Representative of student opinions and feelings, the publication is free to print what it pleases. It applies its own censorship. The editor and business manager have, until this year, been elected by the student body. Under a new policy they are appointed to insure continuance of dependable management.

White Topper columns provide serious and humorous discussion for the campus every Tuesday evening at supper-time.

In addition to regular columns, outstanding sports coverage, and good general news, the paper has its own cartoonists who satirize areas of campus need.

The newspaper is one of oldest continuous college papers in the South.

PRISM

The Prism staff offers opportunity for students interested in editorial training and creative endeavors. In addition to its regular semester publications of the Prism literary magazine and sponsorship of prose and poetry contest, this year the staff published The Best of the Prism, a collection of the most outstanding contributions to the Prism since its founding in 1957.

Edited annually by co-editors appointed by the Student Body President, the Student Handbook provides a handy guide to all campus rules, activities, and scheduled events. The Constitutions of the Student Body and Women's Student Government Association are contained in this book, as well as regulations and penalties for violations for men and women students.

The book serves as an official written welcome to new students at the beginning of each year.

Transmitting to the entire community of Emory with its major service to the campus, Radio Station WGLG broadcasts from a studio on the ground floor of Wiley Hall. Self-sufficient on advertising contracts and a minimum allocation from the student government, the station provides news, music, weather, and a campus calendar to the student body.

The station provides continuous programming 24 hours prior to a holiday to "count down." Management is completely in the hands of students.

CAMPUS POLITICS

The backbone of the campus student government is to be found in the political-party structure which prevails. Candidates are nominated and supported by their respective parties. Each party functions in ways similar to that of the parties which control our national elections.

It is the duty of the political party to inform the electorate, provide candidates and encourage student legislation. The two-party system on our campus is strong. INDEPENDENTS and GAYLORDS struggle for control of the student legislature and the executive branch of the government.

Each party is organized as a caucus and endeavors to fulfill student wishes in areas of campus government.

ALETHIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

The oldest traditions of the college have their roots in the halls of the literary societies. The grand old halls have echoed for over a hundred years with serious and light attempts at promoting the fine art of public speaking.

The two societies for men were established in 1838. The

HERMESIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

Calliopean Society was the first by several months. The women's societies were established on the campus in the late 1920's.

In the early days of the college emphasis on public speaking was strong and the literary societies trained young men

CLASSES

Five till eight. A maddening rush and suddenly you're in class. A surprise punch from the person next to you and you're awake and a line is halfway down a page of notes. "Psst! Stamper throws chalk when you're asleep!" Eight o'clocks and you hate them. "By and large," "You pays your money and takes your choice," "Good food today in the 'Ulcer Cafe,'" "When I was in the Navy . . ." and the classic, "Next man read! Um-hm!" Sayings by professors day in and day out . . . Idiosyncrasies that provide the fondest memories from days : "On class or off class." This is Emory, not Lilliput.

In Memoriam

Victor Stradley Armbrister, Ph.D., November 8, 1902

October 6, 1962

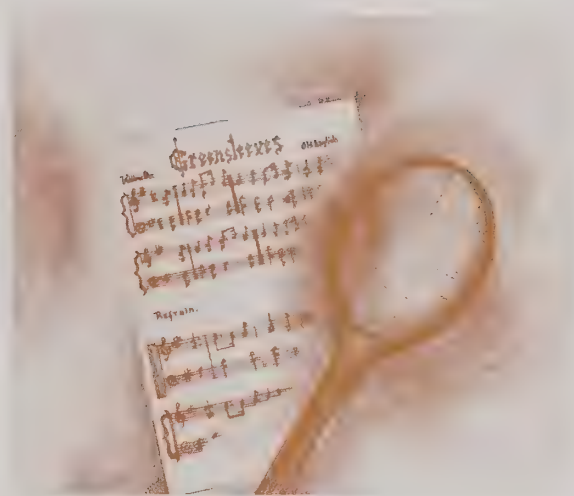

—Dean, Emory & Henry College—

"It is devoutly to be wished that the labors thus expended may not have been lost in futile scholarship or empty learning, but that whatever of knowledge and wisdom which may have come by reason of these endeavors may be productive of creative thought and wholesome living, inspirational teaching and praiseworthy practice."

Dr. Armbrister wrote the above paragraph in the preface to a compilation of his papers written in preparation for his doctoral dissertation. The lines serve as a written philosophy for his life. As Dean of Emory & Henry College he gave his unfaltering attention to the school around which his life centered. His door was never closed and his mind never ceased thinking about the students and colleagues for which he lived. He was Dean from 1940 until his death.

It has been said that a great man needs no marker for his grave. The lives which have been enriched by association with this great man will serve as a marker for the world to see as one man's influence lives on.

In memorium to the life of our Dean this book and especially this section is presented.

A day of incongruity has caused a great void to be felt by us. Why must such a man die, a man who could so thoroughly live every moment and who so gave life to life for us? We are unshamed to feel grief and sadness that the man is gone who taught us how to live, who led us to be so human, to be proud of and to respect our humanness; who made us aware of ourselves as selves, aware of our responsibilities as such, and who was man enough to do it for us one at a time.

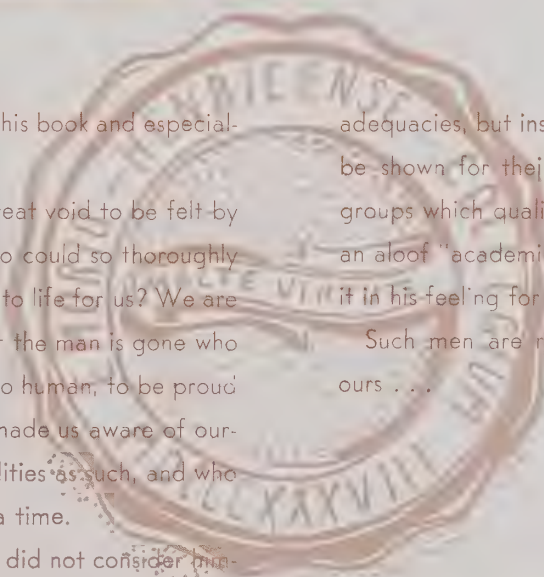

Dr. Armbrister was not a paragon, he did not consider himself as such. This is a part of the beauty of the man. He was a man, with all the implications that made him human.

The Dean always taught us, he was never unavailable to us, he was always honest with us; this, his greatness, because he was always honest with himself. He was dedicated to ideals and principles of goodness and to a faith in and love for people, with their failings and their strengths, which led him to see us always as individuals. He accepted fears, weaknesses, in-adequacies, but insisted that they be called human; that they be shown for their humanness; that they not be hidden in groups which qualify as products of dishonesty. If he was of an aloof "academic family" he was completely unaffected by it in his feeling for us, in his caring.

Such men are rare. The Dean was, indeed, uncommonly ours . . .

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The development of Emory and Henry College has for one hundred and twenty-five years been a major investment of Holston Conference of the Methodist Church. The College is the oldest institution of learning in southwest Virginia and is one of the few schools in this whole area opened as a college, continued under its original name, and still supported by the founding organization.

1963 marks the one-hundred-and-twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of the College. It was on April 2, 1838 that the first students began classes here. Emory and Henry College was established by the Holston Conference when the conference membership was twenty-nine thousand. Today, Holston Conference reaches from Chattanooga, Tennessee to Radford, Virginia, and provides for three conference colleges.

The College was named in honor of two great leaders: Bishop John Emory of the Methodist Church and Patrick Henry, the great American orator and Revolutionary patriot. The first president of the College was the Reverend Charles Collins. Today, Dr. Earl G. Hunt, Jr., is the fourteenth president of the institution.

Among the names associated with the founding of the College are the names of Tobias Smyth, Creed Fulton and Colonel William Byars. Creed Fulton was appointed to select the site for the College. In 1835 when he was returning from Annual Conference in Abingdon, Virginia, he stayed overnight in the home of Tobias Smyth. Smyth influenced Fulton to select a site one mile from his home for the new college. A cabin similar to the home of Tobias Smyth stands today on the Emory and Henry campus as a tribute to the establishment of the College on its present location.

Colonel William Byars was a prominent land owner and planter in this area of southwest Virginia. His gifts greatly benefitted the founding of the college. The Byars name is memorialized in the Memorial Library which serves not only as the College Library but also the quarters for the two ornate literary-society halls which are as old as the college itself. The name of Creed Fulton is immortalized on the Physics Building and Observatory. This building was built in 1915 with funds raised by the College. A major portion of this money was raised at a lecture given by William Jennings Bryan on the campus. Mr. Bryan came to the campus through the efforts of Dr. Fred Allison, '04.

Today the campus stretches over one hundred acres of land. To either side of the green hills on which the college is built are mountain ranges. At the heart of the campus is the Memorial Chapel symbolic of the emphasis placed on the Christian religion at Emory and Henry College. There are twenty-three buildings on the campus and several others on the drawing boards for the immediate future. Among these future buildings are the fine arts building, a new auditorium, an expanded library or a new one, and residence quarters.

Emory and Henry College has benefitted greatly from the gifts of many alumni and friends. The gifts of these people have enabled the College to provide better facilities and finer academic opportunities for the students. The most recent bequest to the college was the bulk of the estate of Frederick T. Kelly, '05, and his wife. The amount of this gift exceeded one million dollars. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley's gift has made possible increased endowment for the institution and many needed improvements. The Kellys are buried in the Holston Cemetery on the hill overlooking the campus of the college whose growth will be greatly enhanced because of their belief in higher education through a church-related college.

The gifts of other alumni have been significant to the growth of the college. The establishment of the Henry Carter Stuart Chair of English by ex-Governor Stuart, '74, was done so by his gift of one hundred thousand dollars. Dr. Hugh Hawthorne, '06, was for many years president of the Pocahontas Steamship Company and general counsel and director of the Consolidation Coal Company of Pittsburgh. He served as President of the Board of Trustees of Riverside Church of New York City for many years. His death in 1962 was the end of a close association with his Alma Mater. He left two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the establishment of a Chair of Political Science.

Recently, the first BAYS BLACKWELL LECTURESHIP was held on the campus. This lectureship was made possible by Dr. Robert Lee Blackwell, '21, who established this important lectureship in memory of his father. The lectureship brought Sir Hugh Foot, United Kingdom Ambassador to the United Nations, to the campus.

The Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, awarded Emory and Henry College a grant of twenty-five thousand dollars to be used as the endowment for a lectureship in memory of R. J. Reynolds, founder of the tobacco dynasty, who attended Emory and Henry for two years. In 1913 the SPHINX was dedicated to R. J. Reynolds.

Through the years Emory and Henry alumni have made significant contributions to community, state and nation. Our alumni are found in all areas of life where educated people are serving. History has recorded the name of General J. E. B. Stuart of Civil War fame.

Creed Fulton Observatory and Physics Building

General Stuart was a student at this college before attending West Point. Three graduates have been governors: Henry Carter Stuart, '74, and George Campbell Peery, '94, both served as governor of Virginia; Braxton B. Comer, '69, was governor of Alabama. Other graduates have served in Congress and other areas of government. The Bishops of the Methodist Church number three Emory and Henry graduates among their membership: Hoss, Lambuth and Waterhouse. Emory and Henry alumni were once serving at the same time as presidents of the American Medical Association and the National Education Association.

Dr. Fred Allison, '04, is one of the leading scientists in America. His discovery of two of the elements on the periodic chart went unrecognized for years, but gradually he has been given credit for their discovery. The modern radioisotopes laboratory in the Gibson Science Building was established and named in honor of Dr. Allison, who was the first to publish experimental evidence on the existence of the heavy isotope of hydrogen. This evidence was a significant contribution to the advancement of atomic and nuclear science.

Dr. Robert E. L. Humphreys, '89, was a retired Director and Vice-President of Standard Oil Company of Indiana. It was his work with the help of an associate that led to the development of the thermal method of cracking petroleum hydrocarbons to produce gasoline.

Emory and Henry graduates have made outstanding achievements in the fields of religion and education. College presidents, deans and professors rank among the alumni. Many outstanding ministers and missionaries and school teachers have served the world better as a result of their association with Emory and Henry College.

Dr. George J. Stevenson, Chairman of the Department of History and Political Science of the College, will publish in October of this year a detailed and scholarly history of the college. This comprehensive study deals with the theory behind the formation of the college and its force on this area of the South. The book is an accurate account of the history of the college since its foundation. It will also serve as a source book for a study of history of this section of the United States.

The 1962-63 academic year marked the beginning of an intensive self-study by the college of every phase of its activities. This self-study will yield new plans for the future and will become the pattern on which Emory and Henry College will base its course of action if it is to meet the educational, religious and social issues facing our country today.

THIS IS EMORY!

Emory has the traditional side and the historical side, as does every college, but it has more. There is an intangible spirit which permeates the everyday life of each student who comes in contact with the campus. It might be the friendly atmosphere of students who learn to know each other on the basis of their own individual merit and not on the standards set by a social conscious society.

Van Dyke Student Union

The yearbook in 1902 tells of a young man's future view of Emory and Henry. He wrote of his return as an old man. He wrote of getting off of a modern streamliner at the gleaming white marble edifice which replaced the old green and white depot. The town of Emory, quiet and peaceful, had become a bustling city of fifty thousand. Instead of the prophecy being fulfilled, the train has modernized some since 1902, but not much. The same old depot stands beside the tracks. There are several new buildings in the community, but it is still a quiet little southwest Virginia town, unique in that it is the home of an institution of higher learning. Emory is just Emory and the signs over Worthington's and Addison's will hang there for many years, and boys and girls will continue walking across the railroad tracks to the post office on fruitless missions for mail. The cemetery on the hill will always be the best place to get away and think, and when spring time settles that strange disease on the campus, as it does each year, and people cut classes for suntans and ballgames, there will still be couples taking that slow walk up the hill by the Crowe's Nest and on up to the graveyard to decide the problems of the world.

Freshmen will come and go; ratting will continue to be the endless drudgery to be criticized and studied and revived; and social organizations will become frantic for new members. Seniors will graduate; juniors will become aware of such terms as doubt, existentialism and conservatism. Sophomores will join clubs and wonder why they have to take so many required courses. Patterns for lives will be established and friendships made and old ones deepened. There'll be nightly pilgrimages to the "Rainbow" and "Deadeyes." Bristol will see its share of Emory boys, from habit if nothing else. There will forever be VI and Sullins girls to tantalize the sparks of jealousy every Emory girl must have if she is to continue the tradition.

Miss Webb will live forever as "Spider" and Prof. Stallard will be "Jose" to the Latin scholars throughout infinity. He will find his way someday to sit beside Cicero and Virgil and talk about baseball more than likely. "By and large" Dr. Stevenson will remain on top of his desk to forever compete with the machine gun for speed of deliverance. Mr. Neal will never make up his mind about John Wilkes Booth and Lincoln, and Mr. Purifoy will go to tennis matches any spring afternoon rather than talk about the "return to normalcy." The clocks will probably stop ticking if Dean Brown and Dean Cox fail to walk gracefully into the "Hut" every morning at precisely the same time. Of course, it is hard to imagine Emory without a new term or phrase on which to begin and live the year after Dr. Hunt's annual blessing of the "troops." We've "homogenized", "Synthesized", and known that "This ought to be Emory and Henry College!" This year we were "Emory persons."

What would people in a hurry do if they got there on time and Mr. Sikorski hadn't stopped them for three hours? I know there'll always be "My Idiots" so that Dr. Blesi can talk to the advance classes about the "bonehead" English students. Mrs. Blesi will forever enlighten freshmen and sophomores on the lovers of George Sand. The Science Building will echo with "Pop Quezes" and happy chemists with hundreds of 220 Chemistry students. "Rusty" will continue to lead the Republican Party's campaign for college students and will someday find a sure cure for pin-ball machines. The hallowed silence of the library will always be a place to date and act afraid of Miss Power. Mrs. Orr will continue to cause more noise than anyone when she "whispers" to students to be quiet. Every now and then Dr. Goldsmith's battery will burn out and his hearing aid won't work, and the back of room will take a holiday.

Stuart Hall

Hillman Hall

Now that the spin through the faculty has been taken, for it is tradition that all good yearbooks become involved in such memory cues, just remember that good times and sometimes hard times were had at Emory and Henry. It will be fun to say what we did when we were in college, but in case it gets hard to remember one has but to turn to the wisdom of the agless SPHINX and that ancient sage will again reveal thoughts of the endless four years' search for truth.

This is Emory—1963.

A Memorable Year

• Congratulations to the Student Body and Faculty of Emory and Henry College upon the completion of another outstanding year of accomplishments.

• The Staff of your annual has worked exceedingly hard to give you a superb book that portrays the highlights of memorable activities. To preserve this excellent literary and photographic record, the best grades of material have been combined with skilled workmanship to provide the finest quality yearbook.

• We are proud that the 1963 Staff elected us to help design, print and bind the SPHINX. We have earnestly endeavored to fulfill the confidence placed in us.

FINE
FESTIVAL

MARCH 31, 1963

APRIL 5, 1963

Too late to be included in the regular lay-out of the Sphinx was the first Fine Arts Festival ever held at Emory & Henry College. The Festival was sponsored by the Student Government and paid for from funds earned by the student body. It was the purpose of the Festival to emphasize three major areas of art: literature, music and painting. Two lectures by Mr. Louis Untermeyer, Poetry Consultant at the Library of Congress, highlighted the week. The music of Professor Ludwik Sikorski was performed by the Highlands Chamber Orchestra under his direction and was interpreted in dance by the Constance Hardinge Concert Ballet Company. Art exhibitions by campus and visiting artists provided an unusual spectacle in this realm of the fine arts. Shown on this page is the official program for the Fine Arts Festival.
